Richard is a seasoned intellectual property law litigator. He has successfully litigated numerous multimillion dollar IP matters in federal courts across the U.S. involving claims of patent infringement (including defenses and counterclaims of invalidity, unenforceability, and non-infringement), as well as a wide variety of Lanham Act cases involving claims of trademark and trade dress infringement, trademark dilution, counterfeiting, false advertising, and false designation of origin. Richard has procured numerous temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions against infringing parties at the onset of litigation, thereby effectively resolving the litigation favorable to his clients' intellectual property rights and conserving substantial litigation fees and costs. Most often, Richard has negotiated settlement agreements for a proper and efficient disposition of the litigation.

Richard has also served as outside legal counsel and advisor/strategist to various pharma, biotech and life science clients. Richard has provided critical guidance and advice on numerous, substantive IP/FDA issues and matters, including Hatch-Waxman strategies for brand and generic products; designed and administered sophisticated competitive investigation and analysis surveys as to potential Section 505(j) ANDA generic entries (Paragraphs III and IV pathways) and "paper NDAs" under Section 505(b)(2) and comprehensive prior art and competitive pipeline landscape surveys and analysis reports to C-level management for implementation of clients' global patent/product strategies; instituted and prosecuted USPTO inter partes reviews (IPRs) before the PTAB challenging biotech patent validity; monitored and counseled key management on competitor IP litigation, including challenges of validity and enforceability of pharmaceutical and bioactive NCEs, compounds and compositions; administered and authored comprehensive prior art search analyses and reports directed towards invalidation, freedom to operate and novelty (patentability); provided key counsel regarding management of patent portfolios and extensions of protection.

Richard is also highly experienced in all aspects of trademark and trade dress protection, prosecution, registration, enforcement, and litigation, including inter and ex parte proceedings and appeals before the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board of the USPTO (opposition and cancellation proceedings), concurrent use matters and agreements, prosecution, and enforcement strategies.

As a Certified Licensing Professional™, Richard has negotiated, drafted and closed hundreds of patent, software, pharma, biotech licensing matters involving several Fortune 500 companies and large international corporations. His licensing practice focuses on maximizing IP asset value and revenue, while further offering robust protection of the licensed property.

Negotiated and closed numerous IP transactional matters. Conducted full scale IP due diligence investigations, rendered professional legal opinions on various IP (validity, enforceability, patentability, right to use/operate, etc.), drafted documentation, and performed other tasks mission critical to closure of transactions.
